

Are you asking yourself the right questions for success?

Where do I want to go?

A man with a beard and a microphone is standing on a stage, wearing a black turtleneck sweater. He is looking towards the camera with a serious expression. The background is dark with vertical light strips on the left.

How do I want to get there?

Whom do I want with me?

When do I want to get there?

I know these questions seem simple but as an expert on self-leadership and a leadership coach for nearly 25 years, I know that people don't ask them enough and they struggle to resolve one other question...

What is stopping me?
